

The Route 22 Corridor in Circleville, Ohio builds on the Circleville brand and creates a unique and dynamic entry that conveys pride in the city. G2 identified all internal and external forces that can benefit or potentially harm the success of this project. The design evolved as the community was engaged to measure attainable objectives, evaluate impact, and identify the wants and wishes of the community. The adjacent property owner, Cargill, strongly influenced the design as G2 respectfully reached out to the company to ensure their needs are addressed. As the solution emerged, G2 strategically designed the project to be implemented in phases. The design costs can be easily itemized, giving the client the financial flexibility to seek funding from multiple resources.
